Updates from the Cancer Prevention and Management SIG

We are looking forward to the upcoming ISBNPA Annual Meeting from May 20-23, 2024! To help you plan, we will send an additional newsletter with CPM-sponsored sessions and more details regarding activities at this year's conference next month. Keep an eye out!

Meet CPM's Newest Member

Leanne Shearsmith recently joined the CPM Executive Committee as the Secretary. Leanne is currently a Research Assistant at the Leeds Institute of Health Sciences, where she is working on the APPROACH Trial, which is exploring the potential of a mobile phone application to increase physical activity among Yorkshire cancer patients. Her primary research interest is using behavioural science to support those living with and beyond cancer, with a focus on Patient and Public Involvement and Engagement (PPIE). Welcome, Leanne!

CPM Member Research Awards and Highlights

The 2023 CPM Early Career Seed Funding recipient is Jordan Curry, BSc (Hons), PGCert, MSc, AFHEA. Jordan is an Academic Clinical Exercise Physiologist and Research Associate on the CANBENEFIT II and CANFit trials at the Hull York Medical School and Wolfson Palliative Care Research Centre at the University of Hull, UK. He is completing his PhD in Medical Sciences with a focus on exercise oncology and digital technology. His project, "Understanding barriers and facilitators to implementing exercise interventions for patients receiving immune checkpoint inhibitor (ICI) treatment: a qualitative study," will explore the barriers and facilitators that could influence the multilevel implementation of exercise alongside ICI treatment to inform intervention development and future trial design. Congratulations, Jordan!

Jordan will also present his doctoral research process and findings on the feasibility and acceptability of ExerciseGuide UK, a web-based platform offering personalised physical activity programmes and educational resources for individuals living with and beyond lung cancer. Through a mixed-methods approach, Jordan co-designed ExerciseGuide UK iteratively with patient and public involvement members. The presentation will highlight the steps taken during his doctoral journey and share valuable insights gained through this research, shedding light on the importance of patient engagement in the development of such resources.
